Argos 'Ask Trevor' Evaluation Report

Scenario: TC-ARG-005 (tc_arg_005_oled_vs_qled)

Persona: Tech Enthusiast / Spec-Driven

Objective: Customer wants comparison of OLED vs QLED for bright room and a model under 55 inches.

Execution: 2026-10-13 23:24:57 -> 2026-10-13 23:25:59

Total Turns: 3

Execution Video: execution_video.mp4

OVERALL VERDICT: FAIL

Judging & Criteria Evaluation:

[FAIL] Accurately explains OLED vs QLED advantages in brightness and contrast

Reasoning: Trevor never provided any explanation of OLED vs QLED differences. Turn 1 response showed only the initial interface without addressing the question. Subsequent turns continued to fail to provide the requested technical comparison.

[FAIL] Suggests TV models under 55 inches suitable for a bright room

Reasoning: Trevor did not suggest any specific TV models. Turn 2 and Turn 3 both returned 'I couldn't find any matching products' messages without providing actual product recommendations under 55 inches for a bright room.

Customer Query:

I'm specifically interested in using it for gaming - which technology handles motion better and what kind of peak brightness levels should I be looking for in a bright room?

Trevor AI Response:

I couldn't find any matching products from that search.
If you want, try a different search term such as the screen type, size, or brand, and I'll narrow it down for gaming and bright-room use.

Customer Query:

What input lag and refresh rate specifications should I be targeting for competitive gaming, and do any of your models under 55 inches support HDMI 2.1 for next-gen consoles?

Trevor AI Response:

I couldn't find any matching models under 55 inches from that search.
If you'd like, try a broader search such as TV 43 inch, TV 50 inch, or a brand name, and I can check which ones suit competitive gaming best.
You may consider

Explain what HDMI 2.1 offers over older versions for next-gen console gaming.
